| I have this issue about every 2 days - possibly more. Toggling airplane mode does not solve it, the phone needs to be rebooted for the radio to turn back on.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| My GN suffers from the same issue. It happens very often. I am still on 4.0.1, so I hope that once i have installed the 4.0.2 this will disappear.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

| I'm having the same problem, my Google Galaxy Nexus phone puts itself in AirPlane mode and the only way to turn it off is by restarting the phone.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

| Change of SIM card made no difference. I am still being switched to Airplane mode and unable to get out of it. This usually happens aftet I have lost the signal for a bit. Living on a high floo. r in an apartment building means I lose the signal frequently when I am in the lift. This is becomming quite annoying                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

| I took a logcat of the radio events when it happened and when it came back. Hope this helps, I'm not really sure on what I'm looking at.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

| I have also had this problem about 4 times now; very irritating. I can't seem to find any common cause to any of the times it happened. Sometimes plugged in (charging) sometimes not, different cause to any of the times it happened.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

| Same situation. When in sleep mode, my GN loses all cellular connection. Only solution is to reboot. I tried using 2G only and turning off NFC but no effect. This is my second new phone and                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| My wife and I both have GN phones and get this problem. When we first got the phones before Christmas the problem seemed to be worse and was happening on my wifes phone 2 or 3 times                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| We haven't been able to prove it but it also appears that texts sent to the phone when it is like this never get received.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| I have just talked to Samsung and they advised to send it back to them for repair. I think this is a standard procedure but I am reluctant to be left without a phone for up to 2 weeks. It seems                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| I am on T Mobile UK but the phone is unlocked to all networks.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| I'm having this issue and I thought it was delegated to the Juice Defender app toggling my data, so I uninstalled it. Turns out that when I take the subway into work, I can't get back onto cellul                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

| A reboot fixes the issue.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

| In response to comment #32, I DISAGREE that it is a only a select few defective units. If a unit hasn't encountered this issue yet, the environment might not have been correct for it to malfund                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| I had either a defective unit or defective SIM card and I was losing my signal frequently in my first week with the device. Because of this I saw the phantom airplane issue 36903752 times. I had                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Just because a replacement unit doesn't experience the issue doesn't mean it can't. You still seem to need to lose signal for the Nexus to encounter this issue.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| So again, I've replaced my unit, but still encountered the airplane bug. It just occurs very infrequently for me on my new unit.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| Somewhere on XDA Developers site I saw that those who had the problem HAVE NOT EXPERIENCED IT AFTER THE 4.0.2 SYSTEM UPDATE. I hope this is correct as it does look like a softwar                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Fortunately, the 4.0.2 was applied to my NG yesterday so I will monitor my phone and update you if I get the problem again.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Can anybody confirm that they are getting the same problem and have had the 4.0.2 system update?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| #34: Can you tell me how did you get your phone updated? My phone does not recognize, that there's 4.0.2 update?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| Unfortunately you will have to wait. You are somewhere on the looong list. It will hit your phone soon. I saw an article somewhere on how to do it manually but I wouldn't recommend it.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| So far I have noticed a huge battery improvement and the reception is excellent in place where it wasn't before. i supposed that constant search for network before had taken its toll on the battery improvement.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| After comment #34 I decided to try rooting and upgrading manually my phone to 4.0.3. After the upgrade, I've not observed the issue anymore - so far (only 6 hours have been gone since!).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| As per comment 38 my radio band has also changed to KK6 after I have applied the system upgrade. I must say I pleased with my phone's battery lifeand no reception issues yet.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| I just upgraded to 4.0.2 yesterday, but unfortunately my signal dropped a few minutes ago. Grrrrrr, I had hoped that 4.0.2 would solve the issue, but apparently it doesn't. Maybe 4.0.3 will do to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

| I had a couple of connection breakdowns today! I believe that's much, much better than just hanging or rebooting the phone, but the problem still exists at some level.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

| However, with this ROM the phone drops the connection and then is able to restore it. I'm waiting to see what's going to be the level of annoyment, which I'll get with this issue if it's too much                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| Getting the exact same thing. It was working earlier at a friend's house, drove home and found that I couldn't make or receive any calls!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| When this happens:  - the reception bars go completely grey and won't change back to blue,  - when trying to dial a number, it says "to place a call, first turn off airplane mode" despite no airplane icon and the "Wireless & Networks" menu has airplane mode unchecked,  - clicking airplane mode puts a check in the box and the airplane icon appears, but toggling it off won't make it disappear (waited 5 minutes),  - on the mobile network settings screen, the "use 2g networks" part is greyed out and not checked <= this WAS checked before this happened since I was noticing the phone switching back |

- while the power button shows airplane mode on, trying to toggle airplane mode from this menu updates an on/off flag somewhere but doesn't anything about the radio (WiFi was already off

| Going into phone info (##3436##), my phone status has some weird info:  - IMEI shows up, but phone number says "unknown" and current network is blank,  - GSM service says "Radio off" and GPRS service: Disconnected.  - Network type says "Unknown:0", Message waiting: false,  - Radio resets:0, Data attempts: 0, Data successes: 0, GSM disconnects: just says DATA.  - Set preferred network type: says "Unknown" when it should say "GSM only". |

| I'm tempted to root my phone to try to figure it out (maybe a process is getting hung?), but I'm not keen about voiding the warranty on a one-week-old unit. | I'm liking my GN thus far, but this issue really needs to bumped to "high" or "critical" priority. The most critical part of a smartphone is the PHONE part.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| For now, I've downloaded No Signal Alert to see how frequently it drops, but this whole cell phone signal thing is making me have doubts about my phone choice. :(                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

| 4.0.2 did not do the trick for me. Before last Thursday I was on 4.0.1 and the problem occurred every two days or so. After updating to 4.0.2 on Thursday the problem became even worse. The                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| I did not want to wait on 4.0.3 (although I don't even know whether that would solve the problem; maybe it's a hardware related problem), so I decided to root my phone and to flash it to a RO                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| But I read some comments on the internet that the update to 4.0.2 has helped some people solve the issue, so I hope it will work out for you.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| Actually, I do not believe the problem is in the OS, the problem looks more into the Radio! If the 4.0.2 update does not bring you the new radio (sometimes they do, sometimes they do not), at I was with 4.0.3 (rooted and 4.0.3. based kernel) and the problem was still popping, but with different appearance (the phone did not block and the radio was able to be reset without restarting                                                          |

| As you can see in comment #41 my radio was also updated to XXKK6, but it didn't solve the problem so I don't really think it's the radio.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

| Happened again the other day in an area with full HSPA reception, so I factory reset my phone and reloaded everything from backup (so twice in 10 days once last Monday, once last Friday                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Since I reset the phone on Friday, I don't have as many apps running. Since then, it has only dropped the HSPA once requiring airplane mode to come back (this happened after driving some                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| This is an intermittent issue, so changing something (flashing the ROM, swapping the device, etc) and having the issue not occur within the next few days does not mean it is resolved.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| The only time my current device encountered this issue was between Dec. 16th - 18th and I still have the screenshot on my phone. | Four times over less than a month, not necessarily spaced equally apart, not going to anywhere that I don't usually do with my phone. Software-wise, nothing particularly worth noting except                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| At this point, I'll be a bit annoyed if it's a hardware problem, since Fido's website says they don't do exchanges over 15 days (so presumably only repair at this point) and this sort of thing didn                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| What would be nice is a followup from the people who loaded radio XXKK6 and whether the fix held or not.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| At this point I don't think anyone has a viable solution to this issue. I hope that the 4.0.4 update that's supposed to push out in March will fix any issue we are having. I am still convinced it's                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| If 4.0.4 doesn't fix the problem, I will be forced to root and flash yakku to my device since I haven't heard of any issues with the "direct from Google" build.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| Might have to start looking into trying the stock build, as that seems to have solved it for some here (though the suggestion that it's one of the apps is interesting).                      |

| I've been updated to 4.0.2 with Bell (Canada) for a few weeks now and have not had this issue occur.                                                                                          |
| I can't comment on the random reboots as I've never encountered that issue.                                                                                                                   |

| I also have this problem, since I bought the phone in December                                                                                                                                |
| The only solution is rebooting the phone, sometimes I have to pull the battery it happens every single time I turn off my phone                                                               |

| Here are the problems I had: - Ghost airplane problem - Frequent lost signals - Freezing on lock screen - Unstable, rebooting by itself - Lost root and impossible to get it's access.             |

- Updated to 4.0.4 (Latest version IMM76i) (Factory image: https://developers.google.com/android/nexus/images#takju) Update: (https://forum.xda-developers.com/showthread.php?t=1.6
- Superuser is not working since the latest version 4.0.4 Flash the new one (Superuser-3.0.7-efghi-signed.zip) from (http://androidsu.com/superuser/) It's a working version. Technically, so:
- The radio UGLC1 (North america) is more recent and is proven to have a better signal than XXLA2 (Internationnal). You can find it here: http://forum.xda-developers.com/showpost.php?p=2
- The damn ghost airplane problem is caused by Juice Defender (ultimate version for me). In the options, there are forced features for wifi/date. When you look at the log you can notice it tr

| - Afterward, boot in recovery and wipe dalvik cache ( in advanced ) and wipe cache. This step is important (you will not lose your apps and configuration they are only cache ).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

| Re #91: after I uninstalled Juice Defender, the airplane bug disappeared. I also had problems with force closes and reboots earlier, but now my phone is perfect. Thanks for the hint!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| Might've found something that might help some people (not quite a fix so much as a mitigating factor). It could be the type and age of the SIM might play a factor. I had an old M32 Fido SII                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Carrier-wise:  - Telus apparently mandates newer SIM cards on their website for access to their 4G network (Telus used to be largely CDMA here),  - Bell and Virgin used to be CDMA and didn't use SIM cards before, so all their cards for GSM phones (at least in this area) are new,  - only Fido and Rogers were GSM here and had SIM cards (and Rogers bought out Fido),  - I am with Fido, but my old SIM was so old it detects as Rogers for some reason,  - my friends on Bell and Virgin have no problem with their phone,  - another friend with Fido sometimes gets the crash when going through the subway/metro, though I'm not sure he has a new card or not.                       |
| Other notes/observations: - Still forcing WCDMA-only. Not sure if EDGE or 2G<->3G is doing any better Still on the original 4.0.1 yakjuux ITL41F.19250UGKL1 build, not rooted or modded in any way Have not defaulted since January (#62) My friend with the Galaxy Nexus on Bell doesn't seem to have either M32 or U0.2 markings on his SIM card in fact, the usual numbers are on the flip side and chip side is completely blank - U0.2 appears to be a "3G" SIM card according to the internet (info seems to be very far and few between)  Changing the SIM for a completely new one (ie: not old stock) is definitely something worth trying, even if the phone seems like it's working. |

| <offtopic> I think I found the solution of the problem: got Galaxy S 3 </offtopic> Otherwise, I second the Juice Defender's dependency for making this bug appear worse. It seems the frequent switch on/off of parts of the hardware pushes it to the limit!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

| I had Android 4.0.2 when I bought my Galaxy Nexus and had no problem. Then it updated to 4.0.4 over the air and I started to have issues. This is why I think this is not a hardware problem.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| From time to time (one or two times per week), the signal drops suddently (the staus icon has a cross, no data connexion available, no phone call are possible, and the phone reports having Other times, the signal bar goes only gray and it is impossible to access internet (phone calls work).  Restarting the phone give me back access to the net, so it is not a carrier problem.  I'm on the French carrier "Free mobile" that was created on January 2012.                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| I tryed to go to airplane mode (I can) and back to normal mode, but signal is not back. I'm forced to restart the phone to make it work again. I tryed to remove the battery and the SIM card and put them back in place but it changes nothing. When restarting the phone, the network icon has a cross for a lot of seconds before going back to normal". In previous Android version (4.0.2) the icon was very quick to show it found the carrier just after I rebooted the phone.                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Recently, I bought the application NFC Tag Launcher to use a tag to put the phone to airplane mode. It works, but when I disable airplane mode, NFC is said to be enabled but does not work: in the system parameters, the "NFC" checkbox is checked but grayed. I'm forced to restart the phone to make it work again.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

It seams related to the bad network managment of Android of this bug.

Someone has the same problem here: http://rootzwiki.com/topic/20876-nfc-wont-turn-on/page_st_10

Here are the logs he has when trying to reenable NFC when going out of airplane mode:

| Thanks for the time you spend trying to fix this bug. I know it's hard to find and debug it, but it's very annoying buying such an expensive devise and having the basics (access to the network) not working.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| This is just to confirm I have an "HTC One X", and I'm having the exact same problem! I'm on Android 4.0.4, and moreover the phone starts to heat up when this happens.(possibly constantly trying to reconnect to t Also, I had this issue with my previous phone, a Samsung "Galaxy S". There also it started only after i updated to ICS (actually CyanogenMod 9). So I'm guessing its to do something with ICS, and not specific hardware, carrier etc. |

|                   | If you are using a localized firmware, you're likely not using the latest Google one. If you want to go to the latest Google version, I would suggest reading this thread (not the author): http://fo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |

|                   | I am having the same issue with my Galaxy S3, Android version 4.1.2 I don't believe it has anything to do with signal strength, as some have speculated, as mine just did it earlier while on Wi-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
